1	Agree, but possibly "economic well-being" is better than "independence", because people may be maximally productive yet still require some supplemental income support.	Jun 22, 2011 7:25 AM
2	Comments from the board of directors of People First of New Hampshire: What is "economic independence"? Do you mean promoting financial responsibility? Instead of information sharing...and dissemination: through the education and development of best practices for all interested parties.	Jun 18, 2011 7:46 AM
3	Sounds good	Jun 15, 2011 6:20 AM
4	agree--statement excellent as is	Jun 14, 2011 12:57 PM
5	Well written.	Jun 14, 2011 10:20 AM
6	I agree with the statement as it is stated	Jun 14, 2011 9:22 AM
7	agree	Jun 14, 2011 8:04 AM
8	Nice clear statement of what we do and why.	Jun 14, 2011 7:03 AM
9	I agree with the statement, I know this is my bias but I am not fond of the word stakeholder.	Jun 14, 2011 6:55 AM
10	Agree	Jun 14, 2011 6:28 AM
11	The rule of thumb for developing good mission statement should include the following. To provide what, to whom, in order to do what. The mission of the NH Employment Community of Practice is to promote and support the development and dissemination of best practices to all stakeholder groups and to continually improve the employment outcomes in wages received, hours worked and company benefits received. It is hard to type in this small box. Have at it!	Jun 14, 2011 6:18 AM
12	I would remove "information sharing". This is inherent in best practices.	Jun 14, 2011 5:44 AM
